Subject:

David and Amy's Wedding.

Notes:

The year after our wedding on the same weekend. I don't know Amy's family at all not even her surname. I gave David free accommodation in Church Walk for a while and got him work doing network cabling with Kevin. It went well at first and Kevin quickly made him a kind of foreman but then I think David went into some kind of malaise. I came home from working in Antwerp and found him sat on the stairs in the dark, the bulbs had gone and he hadn't replaced them. David told his Roy that I was ripping him off by making deductions from his wages. In fact I agreed to make a contract with Kevin as he paid all his workers on the lump and I wanted to make sure that David was legit and paying tax and National Insurance. In fact I was loosing significantly on the deal as I had forgotten that I would be paying employers contribution when I agreed David's rate so the more he earned the more I lost out not to mention the work involved in calculating deductions and notifying HMRC.

A little later he fell out with Kevin. I think he felt that he wasn't getting enough work but Kevin only paid when he had a job on.

I was furious when the accusations came back to me via Royston but it seemed wrong to tell him that David was in error so I let it ride.

Later when David was back living at home and with Amy he had a house party which ended with him being knocked unconscious in the street. I intervened and walked through the house until an ambulance came. Very frightening.

They are the happiest looking couple I've ever seen at their wedding.
