U3A Walk in the Vale of Belvoir.

Notes:

Couldn't face the nine o'clock start, thought I might leave about nine thirty, actually left at nearer ten. Arrived at Dirty Duck car park at about half ten and was on my way by a quarter to eleven. Returned for my camera and set off again about five past.

Traversing fields was very tiring due to surface mud. Some stretches of the canal path suffered from a similar problem. Saw no-one until about one o'clock, which was good.

Went the wrong way around the final loop, such that final mile included three stiles, a fallen tree and a muddy field which were very tiring and stressed my bladder beyond it's capacity for endurance.

Dirty Duck very pleasant, no real ale but the food was pretty good. Settled for a cider with berries at £2.30 half a pint and "Crayfish, crab mac & cheese" which was pleasant enough at £12.75 which I think about two quid over the top. Cider without berries was 4.5% ABV which I thought might be a little sleep inducing.

The pub is currently closed on Mondays and Tuesdays and only open until ten Wednesday to Saturday. Sundays it closes at 9pm.
