Notes:

Photographs of Patrick Rd. and Henry Road are in part a trip down memory lane and in part an attempt to identify the location of pictures taken before my Dad left the family home at 11a. I used to help Dad cut those hedges when we made our regular trips to see Nana. On one occasion when I stayed out cutting the neighbours side of the hedge when the rest of the family went in for tea, Nana Fulford secretly pressed an additional half crown into my hand (we had already each been given half a crown in part for the work and in part just pocket money. Foolishly I promptly told my Mum as I was excited at my prize, she went ballistic. Another rift in the family.

I went down to the Memorial Gardens with my trolley full of camera equipment hoping to be inspired for the "Close up" U3A photography project. The good old telephoto zoom lens did me proud on Victoria, as did the 100mm macro lens on the Cedar tree and the blossom along the rock paths. Still no real joy on the macro close ups though.

Not sure about the couple at the Poppy and Pint for the Lady Bay Arts Trail. Got the names from the programme but may not be the right set.

Very disappointed about the Great Tit, only kept a couple to prove we definitely had one visit. The pigeon is Rahel's. Amazing really that she was able to get a couple of shots in focus as she does not know about the reassigned focus control.

The U3A hike this month was Hoton, Walton on the Wolds, Burton on the Wolds. This I think is the same as the first walk I did with them when they made a fuss about Max coming. I didn't go again for several years until Max became too old and stiff to come on any walks. The food in the Packe Arms was pretty rubbish. The pub focuses on its and is really now a restaurant with a bar.
