Nottingham Riverside Caribbean Carnival

Notes:

Prompted to go by Mick and Sue. Went to visit on the Saturday and Mick was keen to meet up again at the carnival and take some photographs. The event was advertised as being from 2 till 4 but when I arrived at Victoria Embankment at 2.30 the place was deserted. I wondered if I'd missed it. I called Mick but couldn't raise him. I could hear noise, music and stuff from the playing fields beyond the suspension bridge so I wandered up there. There was a substantial fenced off area with fair type amusements which did not seem very well attended but I could see that past that area on one of the flood dykes a ribbon of people along the path so I headed over there to join them to see what appeared to be the tail end of the parade heading towards the Meadows area. I snapped away as fast as I could, sticking the camera into program mode. The girls seemed enthusiastic to be photographed and came toward me so I was able to fill the frame.

Once the parade had passed by I drifted back toward Victoria Embankment past a huge queue which had by now built up to enter the fenced off area. I was surprised to find that a number of people were gathering at the roadside along the embankment. I walked down to Romano's and found that the procession was heading my way so I was able to get a second bite of the cherry this time capturing the full parade which it turned out was pretty what I seen earlier, I hadn't missed much at all.

I think the pics are among the best I've take of these kind of festivities largely as a result of being able to get up close. The only downside was that using programme mode meant that the focusing mechanism tended to pick out the bright moving costumes rather than mostly dark faces. Still a lot of good pics there.

Never did find Mick and Sue.
