Subject:

Edie's Wedding

Notes:

On the back of the photograph is written

Edie's Wedding October 6th '34 Mr & Mrs Robinso

The use of the Robinson's surnames only tends to suggest that they were not that well known to the writer, which I assume to be Elsie Fulford, my Nana. Of course there is no reason to believe that the bride and groom were related to Mr & Mrs Robinson.

I cannot find a registered marriage for Edie in 1934 but there was an Edith Booth married to a Vincent Barrett at the right time. The Chapels registers are held by Nottingham Archives so I might make a visit soon and find out.

The location is the Wesleyan Methodist Chapel in Shakespeare Street, Nottingham. The architect was Thomas Simpson and the chapel was built in 1854. Suffering bomb damage in 1941 and although restored it held it's last Methodist service on 11th October 1953 after which it became a Hebrew Congregation synagogue. The synagogue also closed and in 2019 the building was converted and extended by Nottingham Trent University as their University Hall for graduation ceremonies and other events.

Fred A Steele, preacher and forthcoming attraction at the chapel sadly has not yet made the pages of Wikipedia or indeed anywhere else on the web that I can discover.

People:

Edie, Mr & Mrs Robinson.

Dates:

The date written on the back of the photograph is assumed to be accurate.
