Subject:

Snow, the Chilli Peppers, Red Nose Day and Bradgate Park

Notes:

The pictures in the snow I guess would be at the beginning of February as there was snow across the country on 2st and 2nd of February.

Joseph looks like he's enjoying the football which means he must have been playing in midfield. Richard used to play him as a full back all the time, a position he didn't really understand and hated. Geoff Love would play him in midfield, where he excelled. I couldn't understand why there wasn't more tactical coaching and rotation of positions so the boys could get experience of all the rolls. I think Joseph and Emeka were just played at the back because they were big strong lads.

Bradgate Park was a great day out. Joseph taught Max to swim, which was remarkable because the strange dog despite being a Springer cross was up till that day scared of water. I think he trusted Joseph implicitly and would do anything he told him once he knew what was wanted. We spent quite a while at Bradgate House and learned a lot. There was a chap there who was able to talk us through the history of Lady Jane Grey.

People:

Joseph, Clifford and Rahel.

Dates:

It snowed on the 1st and 2nd of February over much of the country I've gone for the 2nd as the snow doesn't look pristine even though it doesn't really look like a school day.

Red Nose Day was Friday 13 March in 2009 and so I changed the date manually for the shots of Joseph with a red nose. This makes it possible/likely that the football match at West Park was the previous Sunday 8th March.

I've placed Bradgate Park in the first weekend of half term on 4th April although at sometime I've recorded the end date for the set as 2nd April.
