Subject:

Camping trip to Lathkill Dale.

Notes:

I had decided to dispense with the large tent that took hours to put up and take down and bought a much smaller and lighter version. It made a world of difference, we could arrive on site and I could set up in 10 or 15 minutes by myself and resentment free.

I was running a Ford Mondeo which was a huge brute of a car with traction control and a top speed that I never had the opportunity to reach. Luxurious spacious and comfortable but drank petrol copiously.

We didn't pre-book but found a campsite ad hoc. I think the 29th was the start of the last weekend of half term.

We met a fantastic couple on the campsite with much the same ethnic origins as us and they had a small black dog. Joseph got on well with the two boys and we walked together.

After the holiday I think we exchanged contact details but Rahel's illness struck again. When we returned home she was totally paranoid, thought I'd somehow arranged the meeting and was plotting god knows what. Another opportunity for Joseph to engage with a more normal, happier world, was once again totally screwed.

People:

Joseph, Rahel, Clifford.

Dates:

The dates and times are taken from the exif data. I don't recognise the camera id at all. I've seen the Casio Z33 on line and I'm confident that I never had one, I suppose the technology must have been used in something else.
