Town Hall to Gough Road

Notes:

Picture of building excavations opposite the Town Hall from a high position above Victoria Square, possibly somewhere on Hill Street. Then a walk back to Gough Road via Suffolk St. Queensway, Holloway Circus and Horsefair. Don't think we ever went in the White Lion but certainly visited the Bombay Tandoori Restaurant often on the way home from city centre pubs. The Night Out Theatre Restaurant was one the UK's premier cabaret venues. The appearance list is staggering but we had no idea at the time. It opened in April 1975, the interior designer was Todd Kingman. The first headline act was Dana. The venue closed in 1980s becoming a disco.

The Autumnal scene in Gough Road led me at first to think that these shots were taken in October but having read up on the weather for 1975 I now think that at the latest this would be September. August was the hottest on record until 1995, 20 years later, it was also exceptionally dry. The dry weather continued into the winter leading to the drought in 1976. This combined with interrupted growth earlier in the year (it snowed at the beginning of June such I now think the picture was taken to illustrate the early abscission.

The 3 pictures of trees I would have sworn were taken in Wollaton Park but as diaries prove I was nowhere near Nottingham at the time they must go down as unknow.

Dates:

The dates are a puzzle. Gough Rd certainly looks like September but the pictures following are now proved to be early August given that the primary date of 6411 is known to be 7th August.
