Enkutatash

Notes:

Our third Enkutatash celebration, the biggest so far. Eighteen came in total (there would have been twenty one but the Rileys cried off with colds), Laura came and brought her grandson Karol. Karol is a remarkable boy, very confident and articulate. He has been part schooled in Poland.

Mick is off the booze due to blood pressure concerns, which was disappointing and I don't think anyone drank the Chapel Pale. Chapel Pale is my own brew enhanced with English Fuggles, lovely stuff.

Roy produced a splendid torch made with an old tin can.

I added 3 hurricane lamps to the proceedings this time, a mobile fire pit bought on impulse from the Range and finally, after 30 odd years, got the railway signalling lamp working. Really needs a couple of new glass chimneys.

Lost track of the dishes Rahel produced but there was lamb, beef and chicken, with 2 lentil dishes, spinach and potatoes and shiro.

Fred brought his dog Bobbie Draper, a rather nervous little bitch which was a surprise, always thought it was a dog.

I met Elio at last, my sixth great nephew or niece. not counting the ones inherited through marriage. Apparently people are now using the word "nibling" by association with "sibling" to identify nieces and nephews, for some reason that is entirely beyond me, they do not wish to identify their respective genders.
