Subject:

First experiments with macro prime.

Notes:

I have wanted a macro lens for over 50 years and finally decided to bite the bullet. The bullet being the extraordinary cost of these things. After much research I chose the Tamron SP90. I ordered it from "Next-DayCameras.com in time to carry out a U3A project back at the beginning of the year. After months of waiting and gave up and having established that no one else had them in stock either, I decided to go with an even bigger bullet, the Canon 100mm f/2.8 IS USM which many claim is the superior lens. I have barely used it to date. The terrible depth of field and the need for a very stable base makes it very hard indeed to use. These represent some of my early attempts.
