Subject:

Green's Mill and Apple Blossom at 100mm.

Notes:

A walk to Green's Mill on a damp day with my new macro lens. I think this is the day I discovered Lees Hill Footway off of Sneinton Hermitage, leading to Lees Hill Street and St. Stephen's Church. Can't think why I didn't photograph them, or perhaps I did and all the macro lens shots were rubbish. There are a few nice ones here taken with the trusty 24-105mm. I may have had my mono-pole with me.

The apple blossom is in the back garden. I may have been using a tripod but I can't be sure.
