

Roll: 20220501-9223

Camera: Canon EOS 5D Mark III: E53

Film: Full frame digital

Subject:

Jackdaws and Magpies.

Notes:

The bird feeders are a bit of a disappointment. Hitherto they have attracted, squirrels and wood pigeons. I bought two more feeders that were even more squirrel proof, one with an outer cage and the other with sliding shutters that close the feeding hole if the bird is heavy enough to move the perch downward against a spring. Both work in keeping squirrels and large birds away but still no finches or tits to take their place. The old feeders no longer attract squirrels and I have no idea why and honestly I miss them I wonder if it's the jackdaws that are scaring them off. The pigeons now mainly peck over the debris from the others feeding. Those others are mainly four voracious jackdaws and the occasional magpie.

I am much surprised to learn by observation that Maggie's are not in point of fact, only black and white but in closeup have large areas of green and a most vivid blue. Time for a kit change at Notts County? I must let them know.

Dates:

Dates and times are verified from original exif data.

Frames:

F47B4824 20220501 11:19:11 Western jackdaw on a bird feeder.
 F47B4826 20220501 11:19:38 Pica pica on a bird feeder.
 F47B4827 20220501 11:19:41 Common magpie on a bird feeder.
 F47B4829 20220501 11:19:44 Common magpie on a bird feeder.
 F47B4841 20220501 11:31:10 Hedge sparrow on the grass.
 F47B4842 20220501 11:31:12 Hedge sparrow on the grass.
 F47B4844 20220501 11:31:21 Hedge sparrow on the grass.
 F47B4845 20220501 11:32:00 Hedge sparrow on the grass.
 F47B4847 20220501 17:07:54 Common magpie on a bird feeder.

F47B4824 - Western jackdaw on a bird feeder.

F47B4826 - Pica pica on a bird feeder.

F47B4829 - Common magpie on a bird feeder.

F47B4842 - Hedge sparrow on the grass.

F47B4847 - Common magpie on a bird feeder.