U3A Hike - Southwell

Notes:

I was unable to make the U3a Southwell hike on 20th October for reasons that I forget but resolved to follow the route on my Jack Jones at the first opportunity which proved to be Sunday 30th.

The Waze satellite navigation proved excellent in locating the Scout Hut Car Park of Bishop's Drive. Orientating myself for the start of the walk proved a little more problematic. Having set off resolutely in the wrong direction I was assisted in deciding to turn around by a lovely lady who picked up on my hesitation and pointed out the direction of several of Southwell's major features. I still didn't get it quite right and found myself at the finishing point from where I started the walk proper, if you take my meaning.

I took few photographs as to be frank there was little of interest along the route. There was a sign carved on wood mounted quite high on the wall of what I took to be a barn wall in Halloughton, that read "HALLOUGHTON ALL VAGRANTS will be apprehended by Order of The JUSTICES of the PEACE J. Nicholson Chief Constable". I couldn't help but think that the sign reflected the current attitude of local residents as well as those of the past.

For the most part gloomily overcast the sun did break out occasionally in the afternoon with some lovely glowing colours and an illuminating rainbow.

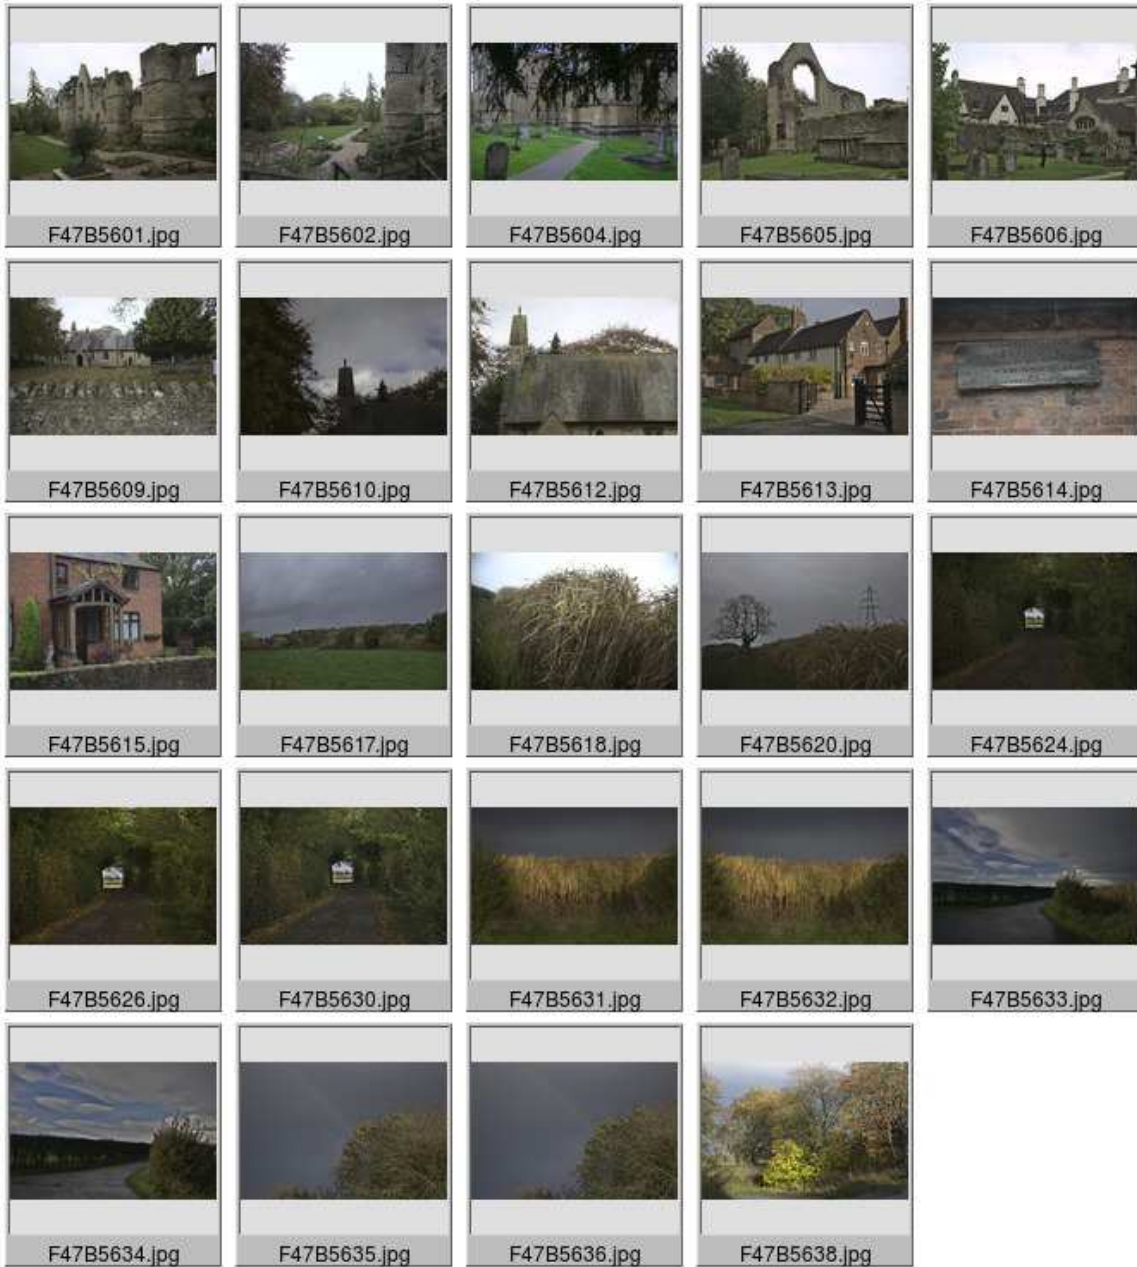

I did the Bishops Palace Gardens a second time at the end of the walk and cantered around the outside of Southwell Minster which seems to have shrunk considerably since my last visit which was with Rahel and her Mum and Dad Tesfaye and Abrehet.
